

Admission Policy (AP)

Policy Concerning the Admission of Students (Undergraduate)

TIU seeks students who agree with its founding principles, educational philosophy, and educational goals, and who have the following qualities.

- (1) The motivation and ability to take action needed to engage proactively in university studies and activities
- (2) Basic knowledge and a basic attitude toward learning developed through classes and activities in high school

* The "basic knowledge and a basic attitude toward learning" indicated in Item (2) are positioned as the foundation for cultivation of the five basic abilities: "Knowledge and Understanding," "Thinking and Judgment," "Interest and Motivation," "Attitude and Discipline," and "Skills and Power of Expression."

TIU is prepared for several kinds of examination and holds them effectually to welcome students who each schools and their departments seek for.

School of Business and Commerce

The School of Business and Commerce seeks students who uphold TIU's founding principles and educational philosophy, agree with the educational policies of the School of Business and Commerce and its departments, and have the knowledge and motivation to foster the following attributes.

1. The motivation and ability to take action needed to engage proactively in university studies and activities
2. Basic academic abilities and a basic attitude toward learning developed through classes and activities in high school
3. [Department of Business and Commerce]
Interest in market trends and motivation to develop the ability to take action in business settings
[Department of Business Administration]
Interest in corporate trends and motivation to develop management capabilities and the ability to manage organizations

School of Economics

The Department of Economics, School of Economics seeks students who uphold TIU's founding principles and educational philosophy, agree with the educational policies of the School of Economics and its department, and have the knowledge and motivation to foster the following attributes.

1. The motivation and ability to take action needed to engage proactively in university studies and activities
2. Basic academic abilities and a basic attitude toward learning developed through classes and activities in high school
3. The motivation to utilize a broad range of basic knowledge and economic thinking in a variety of settings in economic society
4. The motivation to develop logical thinking and strategic thinking skills and learn how to utilize them in business settings

School of Language Communication

The Department of English Communication, School of Language Communication seeks students who uphold TIU's founding principles and educational philosophy, agree with the educational policies of the School of Language Communication and its department, and have the knowledge and motivation to foster the following attributes.

1. The motivation and ability to take action needed to engage proactively in university studies and activities
2. Basic academic abilities and a basic attitude toward learning developed through classes and activities in high school
3. The basic abilities needed to engage in the English language education that is emphasized by the School
4. An interest in the globalizing society, the motivation to work toward understanding diverse societies, and the ability to put that knowledge into action
5. Interest and motivation regarding communication in the international community

School of International Relations

The School of International Relations seeks students who uphold TIU's founding principles and educational philosophy, agree with the educational policies of the School of International Relations and its departments, and have the knowledge and motivation to foster the following attributes.

1. The motivation and ability to take action needed to engage proactively in university studies and activities
2. Basic academic abilities and a basic attitude toward learning developed through classes and activities in high school
3. [Department of International Relations]
The ability to strive continuously to understand the diversity of the international community and develop the ability to use that knowledge to solve problems
[Department of Media and Communication Studies]
The ability to strive continuously to understand the role of the international media and work to improve the ability to receive and send out information

School of Human and Social Sciences

The School of Human and Social Sciences seeks students who uphold TIU's founding principles and educational philosophy, agree with the educational policies of the School of Human and Social Sciences and its departments, and have the knowledge and motivation to foster the following attributes.

1. The motivation and ability to take action needed to engage proactively in university studies and activities
2. Basic academic abilities and a basic attitude toward learning developed through classes and activities in high school
3. An interest in humans and society, and the will to utilize it in society, focusing on the relationship between the mind and the body
4. [Department of Social Welfare and Psychology]
An interest in the mechanism of the mind, an interest in realization of a cohesive society and welfare, and the motivation to put that interest into practice

[Department of Human Development and Sport Sciences]

Interest and motivation to utilize knowledge gained through sports regarding the mechanisms of the mind and the body in education and social activities

[Department of Sport Sciences]

Interest and motivation to understand humans and society through sports from the perspective of the human sciences, and implement sports in a scientific manner

School of Health Sciences

The School of Health Sciences seeks students who uphold TIU's founding principles and educational philosophy, agree with the educational policies of the School of Health Sciences and its department, and have the knowledge and motivation to foster the following attributes.

1. The motivation and ability to take action needed to engage proactively in university studies and activities
2. Basic academic abilities and a basic attitude toward learning developed through classes and activities in high school
3. An interest in health and medical care, and the will to contribute society with compassion for others
4. Desire to become a physical therapist and have the motivation to learn technical knowledge and skills